Formations of the Unconscious Part IV

Qu'est ce que l'amour de la vérité? C'est quelque chose qui se gausse du manque à être de la vérité. Ce manque à être, nous pourrions l'appeler autrement—un manque d'oubli, qui se rappelle à nous dans les formations de l'inconscient. Ce n'est rien qui soit de l'ordre de l'être, d'un être plein d'aucun façon. Qu'est ce que ce désir indestructible dont parle Freud pour conclure les dernières lignes de sa Traumdeutung? Qu'est-ce que ce désir que rien ne peut changer, ni fléchir, quand tout change? Le manque d'oubli est la même chose que la manque à être, car être, ce n'est rien d'autre que d'oublier. L'amour de la vérité, c'est l'amour de la faiblesse dont nous avons soulevé le voile, c'est l'amour de ceci que la vérité cache, et qui s'appelle la castration.

What is the love of truth? It's something that makes fun of the manque a être [lack in being] of truth. We could call this lack in being something else—a lack of forgetting, which reminds us of its existence in the formations of the unconscious. It is nothing that is of the order of being, of a full being in any way. What is the indestructible desire Freud speaks of at the end of his Traumdeutung? What is this desire that nothing can change, or deflect, when everything is changing? The lack of forgetting is the same thing as the lack in being, since being is nothing other than forgetting. The love of truth is the love of this frailty whose veil we have lifted, it's the love of this that truth hides, and which is called castration.

Angst in Psychoanalytical Practice

Without a doubt, angst remains one of the main occurrences in our daily practice with patients. That said, the means at our disposal to reduce it and approach it structurally are anything but simple and direct. Focusing on a close reading of Jacques Lacan's seminar L'angoisse (1962–1963) and Roberto Harari's Lacan's Seminar on Anxiety: An Introduction, this workshop will address how this particular affect functions through clinical examples.

Suggested Readings: J. Lacan, Seminar X: On Anxiety; Roberto Harari, Lacan's Seminar on Anxiety: An Introduction

(Other Press, 2001)

Meeting Place: The meeting will take place at the School of Visual Arts, 214 East 21st Street (between 2nd and 3rd Avenues), New York City. Please ask at the front desk for the room number.

The Gifts of the Analyst, Part II

In learning a foreign language, the most important thing is not to take on the new language, but to abandon your own – that's decisive. --Walter Benjamin

The analyst transmits what he does not know, rather than what he knows. A cure is like learning a foreign language. From that standpoint, it is possible to start listening to one's own language as if it were an unknown one. "It is only then that one can really understand it," as Walter Benjamin puts it. This kind of listening is precisely what the analyst can initiate for the analysand and future analyst. As a result, the analyst will be able to hear his patient's speech as an essentially new one, a speech that could possibly renew theory itself.

Repetition and Creation: The Analytical Act and Transmission in Psychoanalysis

What is the relation between repetition, difference, and new productions in the unfolding of the transference? What kind of encounter suspends the persistence of the same, introducing a cut in the signifying chain and permitting the emergence of the new? Addressing the articulation of the transference and the relation to knowledge of both analyst and analysand, this workshop will study the timing of the analytical act and the conditions for producing a new creation.

Suggested Readings: J. Lacan, Seminar VIII: Le transfert; Seminar XV: L'acte psychanalytique; Seminar XXII: R.S.I.

The Existential Fabric

The Freudian hypothesis of an existential fabric in which generations, sexuality, and social discourse are woven together indicates the fundamental path of the direction of the cure. Failed encounters with the real, the foreclosure of history, and the inhibition of desire will be addressed as some of the paradoxes emerging from the social context of this fabric.

Suggested Readings: S. Freud, Beyond the Pleasure Principle; J. Lacan, "Logical Time and the Assertions of Anticipated Certainty"

Panic Attack and Chronic Fatigue Syndrome

"Panic attack" and "chronic fatigue syndrome" are the names through which two old diseases—anxiety attack and neurasthenia—have become today's trends. In addressing this issue, we will have the opportunity to take a further step in a field mostly abandoned by current psychoanalysis: contemporary vs. actual neuroses, and the challenges that they present to Freudian metapsychology.

Suggested Readings: S. Freud, "Draft G: Melancholia" (January 7, 1895); J. Lacan, Seminar X: On Anxiety

Hysteria and its Relation to Actuality

After 100 years of psychoanalysis, hysteria has gone through some major changes, at least in its presentation. Yet, despite its eradication from the psychiatric nomenclature, hysteria has managed to keep its place, to the point of being more present than ever, always active in stressing and sustaining the very truth that the dominant discourses want to ignore. Through clinical examples, this workshop will address the manifestations of hysteria in contemporary life.

Suggested readings: S. Freud, Studies on Hysteria; "Femininity" from New Introductory Lectures on Psycho-Analysis (1932); J. Lacan, Seminar XX: Encore

Meeting place: The meeting will take place at the School of Visual Arts, 214 East 21st Street (between 2nd and 3rd Avenues), New York City. Please ask at the front desk for the room number.

SEMINARS

Language and Psychoanalysis: the Function of Gender

David Lichtenstein

The seminar on linguistics and psychoanalysis will resume by taking up the question of gender in language. Contemporary gender theory, semiotics, and selected Lacanian texts will be studied to address the problem of the speaker as a gendered subject. Participants are expected to have a basic knowledge of structural linguistics and its relationship to psychoanalysis through the work of Lacan. The universality of language and the particularity of the gendered subject will be the poles for addressing the question of whether the masculine/feminine difference has a function in speech.

Suggested readings: J. Lacan, Seminar XX: Encore

The seminar will meet on Wednesdays from 8:00 p.m. – 10:00 p.m. on the following dates:

November 7, 14, 28

December 5

Meeting place: 80 University Place (corner of East 11th Street), 5th Floor, New York City. For information call David Lichtenstein at (212) 929-6208.

Registration: Pre-registration requested. Attendance is free for all members of Après-Coup, as well as for the faculty and students of SVA. Seminar attendance for others is $150. Individual meetings are $45.

The Unconscious Structured Like a Language

Seminar with Beatriz Azevedo

With this year celebrating the centennial of The Psychopathology of Everyday Life, we will focus our work on the texts of the inventor of psychoanalysis and study the founding basis of his discovery, along with the teachings of Lacan in his return to Freud. Through those texts we will trace the formations of the unconscious: dreams, slips, actes manqués, forgetfulness and finally, how the symptom works.

Suggested reading: S. Freud, The Psychopathology of Everyday Life; J. Lacan, Seminar V: The Formation of the Unconscious

For information about meeting times, place, and registration, please call Mark Stafford at (718) 522-1812 or check our web site at www.apres-coup.org.

CASE PRESENTATIONS

The Psychoanalytic Act: Case Presentation Series

Paola Mieli and André Michels

Guest Speaker: Pura Cancina

Act in itself is always related to a beginning...It is an arché, an Initium...

Jacques Lacan, 1967

The unique nature of psychoanalytic practice bears witness to the uniqueness of the truth of the subject and the impossibility of its reproduction. Therefore, how do we think, and above all, how do we transmit the peculiarity of the analytic act? The mere telling of a clinical case does not become a teaching. How then can we speak of analytic practice so as to emphasize that which becomes act through saying?

This series of case presentations aims at studying and transmitting the unfolding of a cure, focusing on the uniqueness of the analytical act, in its symbolic, imaginary and real context.

The presentations will take place on Friday evenings, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., on the following dates:

November 30, 2001

January 11, 2002

February 15, 2002

April 5, 2002

Meeting place: The meetings will be held at the School of Visual Arts, 214 East 21st street (between 2nd and 3rd Avenues) New York City. Please ask at the front door for the room number.

Registration: Attendance is free for all members of Après-Coup. Attendance for others is $50 per meeting. For information call Paola Mieli at (212) 228-5120.

CANCELLED The Practice of Psychoanalysis in Mental Health Institutions

Adriana Passini

Participants will present clinical material taken from their own experience with patients in various mental health institutions. Clinicians from both outpatient and inpatient programs are invited to participate. The work proposed will unfold around two issues: how the institution interferes with the position of the analyst, and what the consequences are for the progress of treatment. We will also explore the significance of the following observation from Lacan as it applies to working within an institutional framework: "Any reply to a demand in analysis, whether it intends to frustrate or gratify, brings the transference back to suggestion."

The group will meet Thursday evenings, from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m., on the following dates:

November 1, 2001

December 6, 2001

January 10, 2002

February 7, 2002

March 21, 2002

April 18, 2002

May 2, 2002

Meeting place: The meetings will be held at 25 East 10th Street (between University Place and Fifth Avenue), Suite 9F, New York City.

Registration: Pre-registration is required. Attendance is free for all members of Après-Coup. Attendance for others is $200. Individual meetings are $45. Please call Adriana Passini at (212) 505-3588.

Salvatore Guido

Reading and Transmission

Focusing on the place of reading in the process of transmission in psychoanalysis, this group will concentrate on a close reading of texts that will serve as reference points in Paola Mieli's workshop. Readings will include the following papers by Freud: Constructions in Analysis; Analysis Terminable and Interminable; Recollection,

Begriff und Erfahrung: Reading Hegel's Phenomenology of Spirit

Through a careful reading of the first four divisions of A.V. Miller's translation of the Phenomenology, including comparisons of it to the original and French versions (Hippolyte translation), we plan to engage questions about reading, translation, and psychoanalysis. Hegel's conceptual apparatus and his focus on how the experience of negation leads to subjective change are just two of the many aspects of his influence in the work of Freud and Lacan.

For further information, contact Scott Savaiano at (917) 553-6061 or SDSNYC@aol.com.

Martin Winn

Reading and Translation

This reading and translation group will focus on Lacan's discussion of Freud's case of the Wolf Man, from Lacan's unpublished 1952-53 seminar. Related texts will be addressed. In addition to studying clinical questions raised by Lacan's seminar, we will translate it into English.

The first meeting of the group is scheduled for Monday, Nov. 5th. Please call Martin Winn at (212) 677-1147 for further information.

Colloquium

Idolatry

Can we find, in the inheritance from Greek, Judaic, and Christian representations of the father, a de-facing of the paternal imago? What is the relation between idolatry and iconoclasm in contemporary society in such manifestations as religious fundamentalism, techno-sciences, global economy, and neo-nationalism?

What are the subjective and collective responses to the falling of idols? Pessimism? Melancholy? A new nomination?
